

"I can truthfully say that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a wonderful medicine and deserves the praise given it," writes Mrs. Emma Spooner, "Littleview, Montclair Co., Mich., Box 258." "I was sick four months, and the medicine prescribed by the doctors did me no good. Finally I wrote to Dr. Pierce for his advice. He answered in a very kind letter instructing me what to do. I followed his advice and to-day I am a well woman, thanks to Dr. Pierce."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

REMEMBER that the Commercial Club meets tonight. This is the time for the annual election of officers. Every member should be present.

THE democratic state organization gives it out that while there are still a few Bryan commandos at large in the hills, most of the free silver burghers have surrendered their arms and taken the oath of allegiance to King Mammon and the powers of Wall street.

THE new pension law passed by congress is doing justice by the permanently disabled veterans and dependent widows of veterans by increasing their allowances. The country cannot be too generous to those who have suffered in her defense.—South Bend Tribune.

We are no more cruel over here than in our own land. Our slanderers will certainly be remembered by us and our friends."—Corydon Republican.

DIED.

MCCANN—Miss Bertha McCann died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. McCann, Sunday morning, June 22, at 7:20 o'clock, after a lingering illness of more than four months. She was taken sick in February and was compelled to give up her work as teacher in the Third ward school. Though she was quite sick then she was very hopeful and confidently expected to be able to resume her school work within a short time. But from that time on her condition gradually grew more critical, though everything possible was done for her relief. But she was hopeful almost to the last that she would recover. Finally though when she realized that death was near she was ready to answer the summons. Before her death she made all plans for her funeral and burial, and these plans are being carried out by the family.

Miss Bertha McCann was born in Seymour, April 18, 1877. She attended the public schools and graduated from the Seymour high school with the class of 1897. She taught in the district schools two years and the past year was a teacher in the Third ward school of this city. She was an earnest, faithful and successful teacher and had been reappointed for next year. She was a member of the First Baptist church and was baptized February 1, 1891, by Rev. E. T. Fox, and was a devout christian and an earnest worker in the church. Miss McCann was held in high esteem by a large circle of friends who now sympathize with the bereaved and sorrowing family.

Funeral from the First Baptist church Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. J. W. Clevenger, of Elwood, assisted by Rev. E. R. Vest. The funeral procession will leave the residence, 305 East Second street, at 1:30 p. m. The school children taught by Miss McCann will attend the funeral in a body.

Burial at Riverview.

APGAR.—Mrs. Isaac Apgar died Sunday morning, June 22, 1902, after a long sickness, aged 66 years. Deceased was born at Baltimore, Maryland, January 3, 1836. She came to Ohio in an early day, and September 30, 1856, she was married to Isaac Apgar at Lima, Ohio. The family came west and located in Seymour forty-two years ago and has resided here since. She leaves a husband and four children, Ed. Apgar, of Cincinnati, Nelson Apgar, of Terre Haute, Mrs. Anna Lee, of Kokomo, and Mrs. Fannie Edmondson, of St. Louis, all of whom are here. Mrs. Apgar had been a member of the M. E. church from early childhood. She was held in high esteem by a wide circle of friends. Funeral at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon from the M. E. church. Burial at Riverview.

HOLE.—H. P. Hole, a well known citizen of Butlerville, died suddenly Saturday, June 21. He was at work about his home Saturday morning and was apparently in his usual health. During the day his wife missed him from the work he was doing and after a while went in search of him. He was found dead in an out building, and the supposition is that death was caused by a blood clot on the brain. Funeral occurred at 10 o'clock Monday forenoon and was in charge of the Masons.

Visitors Won.

The Seymour Reds played the Nationals, of Cincinnati Sunday afternoon. Both clubs played good ball but the visitors proved the stronger and did not permit the home team to score. The Reds were not as strong as they expected to be as some of the players signed failed to arrive. The score at the end of the game was three to nothing in favor of the Nationals. The game was witnessed by a fairly large crowd.

Laid it on Heavy.

Clint Leslie got another drunk Saturday night and became quarrelsome. Monday morning he was taken before Judge Hoyer and was fined $50 and sentenced thirty days in jail. The court then released him during good behavior. If he fails to keep sober he will be sent to jail to serve out the sentence.

Two Important

Platform Pronouncements

Of the Republican
State Convention

By Hon. Addison C. Harris
Of Indianapolis

Nominations are as important as elections. In many localities a nomination is equivalent to an election. In some the election may turn on the character and superior fitness of the candidates. And in every case it is quite as essential that the candidate shall be the choice of his party, or that the officer should be elected by a majority of the people. Yet up to this time very little has been done in Indiana toward securing the integrity of party nominations.

The Indiana Republican state convention took two steps forward toward better modes of nominations, which seem to open the way to practical reform.

The first is: "The state central committee is instructed to prepare and adopt suitable and proper rules and regulations which shall in the future govern the mode and manner of the selection of delegates, to state, congressional and legislative conventions."

The second is: "The Republican party demands the adoption and enforcement of proper laws regulating nominations; securing to every man the right to express his choice for the candidates of the party to which he belongs—whether the nominations are made by a direct primary or a delegate or a mass convention."

The Necessity for Reform.

At the present time there are no uniform rules touching the selection of delegates. Sometimes they are chosen by county conventions, sometimes by the people, and sometimes by the candidates themselves. When a candidate selects his own delegates they become often a political asset which he may use as he wishes to help himself and his friends and hurt his opponents. Such a delegation often divides its vote equally between all the candidates for one office. For practical purposes they might as well not vote at all. Sometimes a group of candidates holding personal delegations form a combination and dominate the convention. It is to reform these abuses that the state committee is commanded to formulate a body of rules "suitable and proper," to the end that a majority vote in a convention shall represent the real and free choice of a majority of the delegates.

The idea of investing a body of men with this power is drawn from our election laws. There the chairmen of the political parties choose men who, with the governor, make the state board of election commissioners, and who supervise the election of state officers. It is quite natural to give to the state committee the power to supervise the party nominations which are of interest throughout the state. And it is not improbable that the legislature will give to these party regulations the quality of law.

A Fundamental Doctrine Declared.

The other declaration is of equal importance. It is that every man has the right to express his choice for the candidates of his party, and demands both the adoption and enforcement of proper laws to carry out this doctrine and enforce this right. The convention did not and could not well formulate the details. It is not the province of a great convention to convert itself into a legislative body. It is enough that it declares a fundamental doctrine and directs its application to be made through the legislative and executive departments. The basic doctrine is that the people acting individually must have the right under the laws to make choice of their party candidates. The method of making the nominations is left where it now rests, in the people. Many counties in this state follow the convention method; as many adopt the primary election. Neither is necessary to be torn up. The people are to have the right of choice in their several localities whether they will nominate in the primary or in convention. Indeed, they may meet in mass convention if they wish.

Safeguarding the Ballot.

Be the "mode and manner" of nomination what it may, the nominations must be under "proper laws." This means, of course, that the right to express the choice must be safeguarded as securely as at an election. Honest secret ballots must be provided, and they can be furnished in a delegate convention as well as in a primary or a mass convention. Corruption and bribery must be prohibited and punished when practiced in the nominations or at elections.

An opportunity is afforded the state committee and the legislature to act conjointly, and with the equal cooperation of the other state committees to establish a plain and practical system of party nominations as free and as fair as our own party elections.

Importance of Pure Nominations.

Pure nominations are as essential to good government as pure elections. If the one is corrupt the other is corrupted. The sentiments expressed by the state convention reflect public opinion which governs conventions and legislatures. This demand for wholesome laws governing nominations is not limited to any party or locality, although it found no expression in the Democratic state platform recently adopted. It remains only to express the wishes of the whole people in clear and simple words, and they will be adopted as another step forward in good government.

pie in clear and simple words, and they will be adopted as another step forward in good government.

PARAGRAPHIC

POINTERS

The Madison Democrat declares that congress could, in a single day, raise the wages of American workmen by lowering the tariff. Congress tried that method in 1893 and raised something in this country other than wages.

"There is one industry that the tariff promotes always, and that is smuggling," says a tariff-for-revenue journal. The tariff promotes smuggling in the same way that the law against thievery prevents stealing. That is to say, if there were no law against stealing, taking what did not belong to you would not be legally a crime.

"The Oregon election comes as a message of good cheer to Democrats everywhere," remarks the Indianapolis Sentinel. In view of the fact that the combined majorities of the two Republican candidates for congress in that state exceeded that given to McKinley two years ago, it is apparent that it is taking very little to coax a crow out of the Democratic rooster this year.

The Democratic state platform of 1892 pledged the party "to remedy the costs growing out of legislation for the rich and powerful and in the interests of corporate wealth," and declared that "trusts, combines and monopolies" were "the result of Republican legislation." On such pledges and pronouncements the Democratic party won in the state and nation in 1892. Did it make any effort to fulfill the pledges it now repeats?

The Democratic state platform declares that the Democratic party placed the penal and benevolent institutions of the state under humane and non-partisan laws, and that the present administration has viciously prostituted these institutions to partisan ends. The author of that plank would probably fall dead or surprise if he ever came face to face with anything so unfamiliar as the truth. Under Governor Hovey a Democratic legislature seized the authority to appoint the officers of state charitable and penal institutions, and the result was a carnival of debauchery which caused the state organ of the Democratic party to hold its nose and cry for help. As the result of succession of Republican legislature, partisan control of the state institutions has become a thing of the past. Only one state institution is without Democratic representation upon its board of control. Three of the four state insane hospitals are under the superintendency of Democratic appointees of unquestioned efficiency. Contracts for supplies are let and subordinate appointments are made, honestly and on business principles.

The Washington Post is an independent newspaper, owned and managed by a Democratic ex-member of congress. It is not of the opinion, however, that Indiana Democratic leadership has, in its desire to return to original principles, made a happy hit in reiterating the declarations in favor of a revenue tariff which may have been well enough from a political standpoint prior to the country's calamitous trial of tariff reform, but which have been rendered preposterous by reason of that experience and Indiana's recent industrial development under protective laws. "Indiana," the Post truly says, "has had great prosperity—the greatest in its history—under the Dingley tariff. Its people are more than ever convinced of the wisdom and expediency of protection. They would rally enthusiastically for a reform of the tariff on protection lines, but they will not be inclined to take a hand in killing the goose that has laid for them such a store of golden eggs as they have accumulated since 1897." Referring to the Boston Post's declaration that tariff for revenue only is the only banner under which the Democracy has won the battle for half a century past, the Washington Post continues: "Our Boston contemporary's allusion to the free-trade victory of 1892 is slightly maladroited. Republican defeat that year would have been assured if the Democrats had not mentioned the tariff or if they had gone to the people with no declarations as to policies. And can the Democracy get any satisfaction or assistance out of the contemplation of the concrete results of that victory? Did it damage any trust? Did it not ring in an era of dire disaster for the victorians party?" These are embarrassing questions, and are not likely to elicit answers from Democratic editors or orators during the campaign of 1902.

Mothers Will Be Heard From.

Senators and politicians who are accusing and denouncing American soldiers would do well to remember that mothers of these young fellows live in all the states of this Union and they have faith in their boys. Blatant defamers will soon find this out.—Richmond Palladium.

W. P. MASTERS, P. M.
Advised June 23, 1902.

The complete novel of the July Lip pincott's Magazine is baptized for the season, "On the Road to Arcady."
The name makes visions of rustic loves and the tale realizes them. It is by Mabel Nelson Thurston, who knows the hearts of the people and speaks their sentiments. She has been to an Arcady of her own and brings back this report full of flowers and sunshine and quiet humor and wooing and finally of winning. It all happens near Washington, and one of the most idyllic episodes is at Mount Vernon.
The tale belongs to the vine-covered porch or the backwoods retreat, but it would harmonize as well with the tumbling surf.

a sickly little young woman, is happy all liver and stomach troubles. Gentle but effective. Only 25c at W. F. Peter

MARRIED.

CARTER-SHEARIN.

A very pretty wedding was that of Miss Mildred Shearin and Mr. Will Carter, solemnized at their home in Indianapolis at noon, Sunday, June 22. Rev. O. W. McGaughey, pastor of the Sixth Christian church, of Indianapolis, was the officiating minister.
The bride looked beautiful in white crepe dechine, carrying a dainty bouquet of white carnations. The groom was dressed in the conventional black. An elegant dinner was served after the ceremony. The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carter and son Harry, Mr. and Mrs. H. M.
Schwing and Benjamin Carter, jr., of Seymour, and Harry Cordes, of Aurora. Mr. and Mrs. Carter will be at home to their friends after June 27, at 1532 Ringgold street, Indianapolis.
They arrived here Sunday evening and will spend the week here with relatives. The groom is a son of Mr.
and Mrs. W. A. Carter, of this city, and is an industrious, popular and trustworthy young man. He now holds a responsible position in the office of the Adams Express Company at Indianapolis. His bride is an accomplished and highly esteemed young lady. Their many friends extend congratulations.

In July Success.

The July "Success" opens with an article of considerable importance and timeliness, in view of the fact that the American shipping combine is one of the great questions agitating both sides of the Atlantic. This article is entitled "The American Merchant Marine as a Career," and its author is Clement A. Griscorn, jr., manager of the American Line. "Success" published the article because it had been asked for information on a career in our merchant marine by hundreds of American and Canadian young men.
The following article is fully as interesting to women as Mr. Griscorn's is to men. It is from the pen of Mrs.
M. E. W. Sherwood, the author of the successful novel, "A Transplanted Rose." Mrs. Sherwood's contribution is entitled, "A Country Girl Abroad," and is especially directed to the girl born and bred in the country who feels that she cannot go to a summer resort because she is not acquainted with the rules of etiquette. Ex-President Grover Cleveland contributes a valuable paper on "The Evolution of Self Made Men."

HE SAVED THE SCOW

A CLEVER BIT OF STRATEGY IN AN ENGINEERING JOB.

How a Young American Engineer Brought His Spirit of Invention to Aid in Solving a Wreck Problem in South America.

"It is easy enough for an engineer to show ability in New York or in other big towns where he can get about all the tools and conveniences ever devised. It is when an engineer finds himself in the wilds of a jungle or up in the mountains, hundreds of miles from civilization, that his own natural ingenuity and invention count," said a veteran engineer to a youngster who had been admitted to the ranks of the Engineers' club.

"Down in Surinam, Dutch Guiana, where the arrival of a sailing schooner causes a sensation, where a mail steamer enters the muddy harbor once in two weeks to carry two hours to get rid of its mail and to take on a few passengers, there was once a young American engineer who showed that he had the proper spirit of invention to advance him to the front ranks of the profession. Like all the best inventions, his was the simplest one, and it was one that was widely talked about among the profession to the credit of the inventor.

"To understand the story properly you need a tridding insight into Surinam and its habits. Here Indians may be seen on the streets wearing only a breechcloth. The white population is so scarce that all are thrown together as if in one large family. Englishmen, Americans, Germans, Dutchmen and Frenchmen all combining together and forming clubs and society to keep themselves from dying of sheer loneliness.

"In this primitive town there was a man who held the splendid monopoly of owning a large scow. That, up there, seems a remarkably small thing to be proud of, but the value of even a scow depends entirely upon where the scow is and what it will cost to replace it. This particular scow had been built by American ship carpenters sent especially from the United States at great expense. There was not another scow in the entire harbor, and about all of the heavy river work to be done for the city and plantations and mining companies was done by this one vessel. Its loss, therefore, would have been not only a severe one for the owner, who had a monopoly of the business for those days, but it would have been little short of a national calamity.

"One day, while the scow was anchored in midstream, one of those smashing black squalls for which the tropics are famous broke over the river, and for twenty minutes you could not see ten feet away or hear a man shouting at your elbow. When the storm finally abated, the scow was not to be seen, and it was found she had gone down, deck load and all. To most of us there seemed about as much chance of raising the vessel as there would be to raise an ocean steamer wrecked in the middle of the Atlantic.

"It was about this time that the young engineer took a hand in the problem. He asked the dimensions of the scow and was told that it was 12 by 60 feet, and then he announced that if the owner would provide him with four men he would raise the scow for a certain sum of money. The bargain was made, though the contractor refused to say how he would go about the job.

"Now, you must know that aside from the ebb and flood tide, which alternate every six hours, there is also what is known as a spring tide. This comes with the full of the moon, and it has the effect of making a higher flood tide than any during the month. The opposite to the spring tide is the neap tide, and that happens at the dark of the moon, with the effect that at no other tide during the month is the ebb tide so low as it is at that time. The difference in the height of water between the ebb and neap tide and the flood at spring tide is considerable.

"The engineer waited until neap tide. On that day he towed a number of logs down the river. These he anchored over the scow and sent men below to fasten chains to one side of the scow, and these he fastened to the logs on the surface. Then he waited patiently. As the spring tide approached he towed other logs down the river until he had enough to make quite a raft, and on the day of the highest tide all the logs were tied together and fastened. The tide rose steadily, and the more it rose the more the raft went down under the strain of the pull on the chains. At last, just as it seemed that the raft was unequal to the occasion, it was seen to bob up violently, and a moment later there was a commotion in the water, and the scow appeared. What had happened, of course, was this: The chains pulling upward on one side of the scow tilted it more and more until the deck load began to slide off, and finally, when all the stones had slid into the river, the scow came up under its own buoyancy. The remainder was simple. The vessel was towed to the shore, where it was hauled up on the sand, and when the water receded holes bored into the hull caused the scow to empty. Later the holes were plugged up again, and the old ship was as fine as silk."—New York Times.

Serious Trolley Collision.

Philadelphia, June 23.—A score of persons were injured last night in a collision of trolley cars at Chestnut Hill, a suburb, but the majority of the victims proceeded to their homes after being treated at a hospital. One car became unmanageable at the top of a hill and crashed into another car which had stopped at the foot of the grade. Both cars were crowded with passengers, who were piled in an indiscriminate mass by the force of the impact. Most of the passengers are suffering from contusions and shock.

Reunited in Jail.

Muncie, Ind., June 23.—Samuel McCrae was jailed a few weeks ago on a number of charges. In the county prison he met his wife from whom he had secured a divorce years ago. They had spent much time in the same city, but did not recognize one another until they both found themselves in jail. They were near one another daily, and this will result in their being remarried.

A Fatal Fall.

Helena, Mont., June 23.—Alice Thompson, the five-year-old granddaughter of the late James G. Blaine, was fatally injured by falling down the elevator shaft of the Monticello apartment house. Her father, Randolph Thompson, was private secretary to Governor Toole, but died about a year ago.

The Negro Escaped.

Knoxville, Tenn., June 23.—Gus Hardin, a negro coal wagon driver, killed a white boy, Bert Pierce, in this city Sunday night with a stone. The missile struck the boy on the head, crushing his skull. The negro escaped.

HE SIGNED HIS NAME.

Story of Frank Hatton When He Became Postmaster General.

"Frank Hatton was a great stickler for details," said a former representative of congress who had been in Washington when Mr. Hatton was postmaster general the other day, "and when he entered the cabinet in the latter part of Arthur's administration he carried this habit with him. He let it be known among the heads of bureaus and divisions that he proposed to familiarize himself with the business of the department until he had grasped all the details of the work over which he presided.

"The second day at his desk the venerable colored messenger who attended him brought the usual large bundle of letters to be signed. It was a pile of typewritten epistles, inches thick. The messenger placed them before Mr. Hatton, and with a blotting pad in hand, stood waiting for the signature, as he had done for Mr. Hatton's predecessors since Hayes' time. The first letter was a long one on a topic with which the new postmaster general was not familiar and so formal, legal and involved that one reading did not make its meaning clear. Mr. Hatton hesitated, wrinkled his forehead and mused to himself.

"What's this all about anyway? It's all news to me. I don't know whether I approve of the things it says or not. I can't make head or tail out of it. I don't know whether it's a good thing or not."

"The old messenger, standing with blotting pad raised, leaned over and placed his forefinger on the space at the end of the last page and answered: 'Well, neither do I, but you sign your name there.'

"Mr. Hatton signed."—New York Times.

Queer Freaks of Flowers.

"Why is it," complained the man with a grout to a restaurant keeper yesterday, "that you fellows hardly ever have any flowers in your old joints?"

The hash founder looked up. "Flowers won't live in restaurants," he said. "The smoke and odor of the cooking seems to smother them, and they never thrive. I've tried it dozens of times, and always with the same result. Put flowers in a saloon, though, and they grow and bloom in splendid shape. The tobacco smoke, I suppose, serves as a fumigator, and the fumes of the liquor apparently stimulate them. If you want to make a success of flowers, put them in a groshop. To stunt or kill them, a restaurant is the best ever."—Duluth News-Tribune.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound of imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

PLAN NOW FOR COLORADO. THE BURLINGTON'S EXTENSIVE SCHEME OF SUMMER TOURS.

The Burlington Route makes the most attractive excursion rates to Colorado Resorts that have ever been made. For long periods of the summer we make such remarkably low first class round trip rates to Denver, Colorado Springs and Manitou, as $21.00 from St. Louis, $15.00 from Kansas City, $25.00 from Chicago, good all summer; at other periods, only one fare plus $2.00 round trip.

CHEAP TO PACIFIC COAST, TOO

May 7th to June 8th, August 2d to 8th. Round trip good 60 days, variable routes: from St. Louis $47.50, from Chicago $50.00, Missouri River $45.00; all lower than the one-way rate; only $11.00 more between Frisco and Portland; first class, good in chair cars (seats free), standard sleepers or Through Tourist Sleeper Excursions. Chief Coast route, the Burlington to Denver, through Scenic Colorado, Salt Lake.

GOUL MINNESOTA.

10,000 lakes; scores of the coolest and best summer localities in the country; frequent periods of low summer rates.

Apply to nearest ticket agent, or write us of your proposed trip, whether to Colorado, Pacific Coast, Yellowstone Park, Minnesota, and let us advise you least cost and assist you.
